

Trauma: Facial

1. Patients with oropharyngeal bleeding who do not require spinal immobilization should be allowed to assume a position of comfort. They can sit leaning forward and may be allowed to suction themselves.

2. Use pressure point if needed.

3. Handle dislodged tooth by crown only. Rinse tooth with saline or water and if possible reinsert the dislodged tooth into its socket. If the tooth can not be reinserted, take it to the dentist in either fresh milk, saliva (tucked between your cheek and gum or sterile saline, or, as a last resort, water.

4. Apply hemostatic agent (Traumadex)

5. Aspiration of blood may mandate advanced airway management. Specifically intubation.